PETERSBURG Early in May General Wise's command Early in May General Wise's command was ordered to Petersburg. From Charleston to Weldon the trip was by rail and easy. At Weldon it was loarned that Federal raiders had destroyed nearly all the track between there and Petersburg. Most of the way was therefore marched. At Nottoway bridge the Fifty-minth regiment of Wise's brigade had a bloody fight with the raiders.

Wise's brigade had a bloody fight with the raiders.

Arrived at Petersburg, the enemy were found encompassing that heroic city. They were entrenched in the turnpike between Richmond and Petersburg, and the Blues fighting soon began and only ended with the surrender at Appomattox Courthouse, PERSONAL.

September 13 1863, Wise's brigade was ordered to South Carolina.

General Henry A. Wise was the brigade commander.

The officers of the Forty-sixth regiment, to which the filues belonged as Company A, were: Colonel, Randolph Harrison; Lieutenant-Colonel, Feyton Wise; Major, James C. Hill.

The paroled filues had mean while been exchanged; the company's ranks were full, and Captain Frederick R. Carter was in command and his heutenants were Charles P. Bigger, R. D. Sanxy, and Ezekiel J. George W. Epps. color-sergeant; George F. Guy, first corporal; Frank R. Steel, second corporal; J. L. Rogers, third corporal; and E. B. White, fourth corporal; and E. B. Probably the most celebrated of all mind-readers and spirit-mediums now before the public is Mr. J. Randall Brown, through whose agency, it is said, the late W. Irving Bishop was developed. Mr. Brown has been engaged in his present calling for the past nineteen years, and has allowed its pearly every part of the calling for the past nineteen years, and has appeared in nearly every part of the globe exhibiting his peculiar faculty before many eminent men. Our people will have an opportunity to investigate the claims of this remarkable man to-morrow night at the Academy of Music, when he will demonstrate his power both as a mind-reader and spirit medium. Impartial history will accord to them the same honor that it gives to Kosciusko and Emmet, to Washington and Jefferson." of Martin & Fowers made a deed of assignment for the benefit of their creditors, with preferences. The firm was composed of Samuel T. Martin and William A. Powers, general partners, and Edgar D. Taylor and Howard Swineford, special partners. On the 20th day of December V. Henry Rothchild & Co., of New York, on behalf of themselves and other creditors, filed their bill in the United States Circuit Court for the purpose of having this deed set aside on the ground that limited partnerships could make no deeds with preference when in an insolvent condition and asked that the deed be declared void and their debts be paid in full. They also claimed that the special partners had violated certain provisions of the law relative to the formation and conduct of limited partners were therefore liable as general partners.

The plaintiffs' and patitioning creditors' As the third reason why we should per-petuate the memory of the Confederate dead, Dr. Goodwin said the honor and fupetuate the memory of the Confederate dead, Dr. Goodwin said the honor and future safety of our country demand that our Confederate dead shall be recognized. "The war had to come. It had its origin far back in English history. The cause of it was intensified by the climate, the soil, the history, and the genius of the two great contending parties. The Constitution left undefined certain great principles which the sword alone could settle. From the very beginning of the Government slavery and State sovereignty were the sources of perpetual agitation. The North misunderstood the South and the South misunderstood the North. Each hated the othereach underrated the courage of the other; but since they have looked into each other's faces down the barrel of their guns they understand each other better. Neither now doubts the courage nor the manhood of the other. The war has settled those agitating questions, thrown the past forever behind us, and opened the way for mutual confidence and mutual devotion to the Union." The speaker then went on to show that had the South submitted to the demands of the North without a stuggle she would have lost her honor and foreited her self-respect. With her honor gone the South would have lost forever her prestigo and her glory. It is the consciousness of duty well performed that has supported our people in their trials and grievances and has animated us in our efforts to rebuild a higher and better civilization."

FOUR SIX MONTHS' SENTENCES. Young Flournoy Given Two Years in Jail for Larceny.

Four of the ten charges against J. T. Flournoy of stealing clothing, umbrellas, and other articles from trains on the Richmond and Danville and other railroads were investigated in the Police Court yesterday morning, and he was sentenced to six months in juil in each case. Mr. J. Samuel Parrish represented the accused and Mr. Samuel M. Page appeared for the proceeduition. rosecution.

Chapman, who is a conductor on the Wabash railroad, but is now on three months' leave of absence. Captain Chapman and he left his overcoat, umbreila, and valise in the last seat in the first-class passenger coach of the train which arrived in Richmond from the West on the afternoon of April 30th. When the train reached the depôt he left the car for a few minutes and returned just as the train was pulling out of the station on its way to Newport News. When he got to his seat he discovered that his overcoat had been taken. Other evidence showed that the coat was identified as were a pair of gloves in the pocket. The Commonwealth rested the case and the Court rendered judgment, no defence being made.

Flournoy was also convicted of stealing an overcoat, the property of Colonel F. who fought and died for the South has day saw that many improvements have been made since last May.

The prisoner thought the Court was rather hard on him, but Justice Crutchfield said he wished the law would allow him to double the penalty.

The other cases were continued until the 20th, and, at the suggestion of Mr. Fage, Not until about 4 o'clock in the afternoon did very many people besides the members of the association with those who had volunteered to help them in the work of decoration go to the cemetery. By 5 o'clock the crowd numbered not less than 2,000. They gathered there from all parts of the city and every kind of vehicle was used in carrying them from the end of the electric line to the cemetery. It was decidedly the largest crowd ever gathered on a Memorial-day at Oakwood.

Several motioes were written and placed in the soldiers' section. Among them were the following: "Tread Lightly: This is Sacred Ground": "The Picket Off Duty Forever": "Until the Angel Calls Them They Slumber."

The Lee Camp of Confederate Veterans met at Twenty-ninth and P streets and were escorted to the cemetery by the Richmond Light Infantry Blues. The procession was headed by the Blues' Band. Loyall and the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company, and his punishment fixed at 81% months in each case. The prisoner thought the Court was rather hard on him, but Justice Crutchfield said he wished the law would allow him to donble the penalty.

The other cases were continued until the 20th, and, at the suggestion of Mr. Fage, a bench warrant was assued charging the prisoner with stealing three umbrellas, two satchels and contents, artists tools and materials, and six overcoats of the value of $51, the property of some person unknown. This makes the charge one of felony.

Commonwealth's-Attorney Cogbill, of Commonwealth's-Attorney Cogbill, of Commonwealth's Attorney Cogbill, of Chesterfield, was present while the trials were in progress. He was interested in the matter, as Flournoy when arrested was under bond to appear before the County Court to-morrow to answer both a felony and misdemeanor charge. Mr. Cogbill made no application for his surrender.

The only provision in the charter having even a remote bearing upon the subject when it is the fourteenth division of section 19. It reads as follows:

"To grant aid to military companies and regiments organized within the city, to so-cities or associations for the advancement of agriculture and the mechanic arts; to scientific, literary, and benevolent societies, provided such societies or associations are located in or near the city, or cemetery until the public exercises were over. They marched around the soldiers' monument and the Blues fired three salutes.

Miss Emma Thursby in Richmend.

In the decision of the question submitted it can make no difference that the city surrenders the use of a building already owned by her instead of renting one for the proposed museum. In either case it would clearly be an illegal appropriation or use of the city's property. I am, therefore, of opinion that the City Council has no power to grant the request made as to the use of the "Davis Mansion" for a museum.
